From May 2 to May 13, the U.S.-based, non-profit organization Clitoraid will launch its first huma

LAS VEGAS, United States of America, May 3, 2017 – From May 2 to May 13, the U.S.-based, non-profit organization Clitoraid will launch its first humanitarian mission in Nairobi, Kenya.

According to Clitoraid Spokesperson Nadine Gary, this new mission is part of the multiple actions plann

“Dr. Marci Bowers, Clitoraid’s gynecological surgeon, will operate on 40 women in Kenya. Clitoraid part

“Dr. Bowers will restore sexual pleasure to 40 patients,” Gary said. “But those having surgery next wee

Gary said Bowers will also train local surgeons during her stay in Kenya.

“She’ll present the clitoral restorative technique developed by French urologist Dr. Pierre Foldes,” Gary Clitoraid's humanitarian mission began in 2004.

“International spiritual leader Maitreya Raduring one of his visits to West Africa in 2003, learned of the g

Gary said Clitoraid has already operated on over 250 FGM survivors, mainly in the United States, where

“Among our former patients is Jaha Dukereh, a U.S. resident born in the Gambia,” Gary said. “Last year

Meanwhile, Clitoraid’s first hospital dedicated to FGM victims and their medical needs in West Africa is “Corrupt male politicians and greedy doctors prevented our 2014 opening, oblivious to the anger and d